Synopsis

The complete designs of Joseph Esherick, one of San Francisco's foremost architects from the 1960s through his death in the late 1990s. Esherick is best known for high-profile public buildings, such as The Cannery at Fisherman's Wharf, the 1968 re-imagining of the old DelMonte cannery that is one of the earliest examples of adaptive re-use of industrial buildings, and the Monterey Bay Aquarium. He also produced a laudable stream of truly classic California homes, influenced less by fashion than by the demands of climate, social structure and suitable technology. A beautifully illustrated book from the distinguished UC Berkeley Landscape Design series.

Customer Reviews

Book was brand new! Not sure how the book sells for such a reasonable price, but extremely pleased! Arrived even sooner than I expected, appreciate the lovely book and the care taken in mailing!

One of the best residential architecture monographs I have ever purchased. Well written, good images.

The quantity and quality of reproduced drawings and house photography is stunning! A must for anybody interested in residential design.
